

"Premier league of rock music" - that is how the German music magazine Musikexpress called the style "Progressive Rock" in their January issue of 2010. And this is exactly the genre that the band CENTRAL PARK from Munich calls their musical home - independent and style-crossing. Since the summer of 2010 the band has a new leading lady in Jannine Pusch, with whom the band did not only get an exceptional singer but also new impulses for changes and artistic development. This is why in 2010 CENTRAL PARK sounds different than expected and successfully bridges the past and the future!

The history of Central Park is long and interesting - and probably one of the most unusual of the German rock scene: founded in 1983 and up to their split in 1989, the band managed to play themselves right "to the top of the German Prog-Rock league" (Keys). 2006 came the completely unexpected reunion, accompanied by the release of the double CD/DVD "unexpected"- the debut album 23 (!) years after the band was founded. The extensive feedback in the media made the band the most visible German Prog-Rock band in its countries magazines and newspapers in the fall of that year. Amongst other accolades, "unexpected" can boast a 3 star review by Rolling Stone and even Kultur Spiegel wrote that "hipster Vincent Gallo would enjoy the majestic debut".

An excerpt of the concerts the band has played since their reunion speaks volumes: as the opener for former Marillion Singer FISH on his German tour, the band could wow the audience in the same fashion as they did with their guest performance on the Loreley (Night of the Prog) or the Burg Herzberg Festival.

The new album "reflected" will surprise many fans as the ingredients of the record are quite something: anthem-like, Crimonesque, metallic, orchestral and futuristic. Genre boundaries? Those are unknown because the band no longer has to prove anything. Variation is guaranteed - both in the studio and live on stage. Music that can be felt - hand-made and full of energy. In 2010, CENTRAL PARK - free of trend-dependence - is a delicacy for friends of the unusual: music by people who love the freedom to have their personalities and their souls reflected in the musical cross-section of their lives.

Keep it central!
